INTRODUCTION

A club community is formed to attain a life-style and to establish a quality of living not ordinarily achieved under other types of community organizations. It is presumed that when a family becomes part of such a club they are in agreement as to its goals, ideals and regulations. Conduct that is detrimental to the general welfare and contrary to the community plan of necessity will be viewed as an indication that those people so actively no longer wish to be a part of the community. For this reason, persons acting in detriment to the general welfare shall be subject to suspension of any and all club privileges. They will, of course have the right to request a reinstatement by an appeal to the President and the Board of Trustees.
